

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN FAMILIES FAIL

6 Ugandan case studies

Steven Mudusu
and Linda Wilson

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN FAMILIES FAIL

Steven Mudusu was abandoned onto the streets of Jinja, Uganda, when he was just 3 years old. As he struggled to survive the horrors of life on the streets and the control of self-styled 'Street Kings', Steven decided he had to rise above the gutter and help save other young and vulnerable children.

In 2009 Steven finally managed to register his charity Divine Care Missions (Jinja).

In 'WHAT HAPPENS WHEN FAMILIES FAIL', Steven recounts the stories of a few of the youngsters he has saved; the challenges they presented; and his strategies for changing their behaviour from that of urchins to angels...well,almost!

The histories of the children are horrific and their behaviour unacceptable in Uganda as they would be in developed countries.

Steven offers tips and suggestions for changing unacceptable behaviour wherever a youngster might be in the world; whatever their circumstances; and regardless of whether they live with family or not.